LOCAL NEWS.

E. F. Pourade, of Manulito, is in town the guest of Mr. Lopez.

Bishop D. K. Udell will also have business before Judge Howard.

Chas. Kinnear, the old-timer, is in town making everybody cheerful about him.

I. J. Clanton looms up from Springerville. He can be found at the Darlington.

Joseph Crosby, of the firm of Crosby, Patterson & Co., is out of town for a few days.

Ernest Tee, Supervisor of Apache county is also at Prescott, witness before the District Court.

Nellie B. Field, the eminent attorney from the gem city was in town yesterday on professional business.

Captain John T. Hogue is equaring up this portion of the public domain setting stakes for actual settlers.

Perfecto Armijo, late Sheriff of Bernalillo county, and Edward Spitz, merchant of Albuquerque, made a short stop at the county seat yesterday.

Springerville has contributed some of her best during the past week. Salzman, Kinnear, and Clanton forming the central flowers in the bouquet.

Alfred Ruiz, County Recorder, is now at Prescott, summoned by the U. S. Court as witness in perjury cases. Will be absent 'till about the 23d of July.

Chas. F. Banta arrived on Tuesday morning from El Paso—coming so quickly from the great heat of that beautiful town, he feels that an overcoat would not be uncomfortable.

John Quigley, from Navajo Springs and all the region around about the southern portion of Apache county, has been taking photographic views of our principal places of entertainment for three days. "Shorty" knows how to enjoy himself as a rational human.

Fell into line that leads to Prescott and the United States District Court. Yesterday the recruits to the innumerable host were Harry Silver and Sol Barth. St. Johns will be represented by all classes, all trades, all sexes and all shades; all styles of beauty, all ages, all virtues and most all the vices. Handle our people gently ye Prescottites, some of them have dynamite in their trousers.

In the case of Stabb & Co., merchant's of Albuquerque, against Sol Barth, of this town, a writ of attachment was obtained in the District Court yesterday by Stabb & Co., against the property of Sol Barth. Upon the presentation of the writ to Sheriff Hubbell for service, he required that Stabb & Co. should furnish satisfactory bonds, sufficient to justify him in making a levy upon personal property. The plaintiffs offered the names of residents of New Mexico, whom the sheriff declined to receive, and as they were not prepared with acceptable security (citizens of Apache county, Arizona) no attachment was made. The Sheriff was willing to accept the offer of Mr. Spitz, of the firm of Stabb & Co., to deposit $5000 in the Prescott bank as security, if Mr. Spitz would indicate the goods he wanted attached. Mr. Spitz withdrew from his proposition to make the deposit and exhibited too much fear of Mr. Barth's pistol to go near the store building where the goods were stored. The facts are that Sol Barth had no interest in the goods that Spitz wished to attach, and the Sheriff knew it; to protect himself and his bondsmen, he insisted on such security from citizens of the county as would amply cover his liability.

A wild cat and a green dog are two natural curiosities that have been secured by A. Pechner at his museum on Commercial street, during the past week. Single observations of these specimens fifteen cents; two looks for a quarter. Gin and milk free to sight seers.

Gov. E. G. Ross, of New Mexico, is receiving from the people abundant testimonials of their appreciation of his appointment. We are glad to notice the evidence of the wisdom of President Cleveland to the statements of the Governor's friends. We notice that the Governor and his family were recently royally entertained by his eminence the venerable Archbishop Lamy of Santa Fe.

C. O. Howe, General Superintendent of the Wabash Cattle Company, whose headquarters are at the Salt Lakes on the Navajo road, was in town yesterday acting as escort to Judge Baldwin, of Indiana, who is largely interested in the Wabash Company's enterprise. The Judge is making his first visit to Arizona, and he is charmed with the climate and satisfied with the prosperous outlook of the Company.

"Saying at the spigot and letting go at the bung-hole."

This order to take effect August 1st, 1885. That is the language of the Executive officer of the post office department in the reduction of the mail service or route No. 40,155 to three times a week. The service on this route is now six times a week, and is really less than the importance of the business on the line requires. The two prominent points supplied by this route are Springerville and St. Johns in Apache county, Arizona; Springerville is the depot for supplies for a large area of country south and west of its immediate location. The region is filled with cultivators of small farms and proprietors of a great number of small herds of cattle and sheep. It contains several large business houses and has a solid population of about 1200 people. The facilities of the U. S. mail is the only means of communication with the business centers possessed by the inhabitants of this quiet industrial locality.

St. Johns the county seat of Apache county, on the Colorado Chiquito, is located on this route 50 miles south of Navajo, a station on the A. & P. railroad, population about 2,300 and contains school houses, churches, warehouses, stores, elegant private residences, hotels, court house and jail, shops for all classes of artisans, in wood, iron and leather, boarding and lodging houses, saloons for entertainment and in fact everything denoting the habitation of a thriving and industrious people. It is the headquarters for a large number of teamsters whose constant industry assists in contributing an animated appearance to the town. The regular and special sessions of the District court of Apache county are held here, and the newly created County court having concurrent jurisdiction with the District court in all civil and criminal cases, is always in session. Our merchants carry large and valuable stocks of goods, and are live men in commerce. Our school houses are well attended during the sessions, and public matters both local and national receive their due share of the people's consideration. St. Johns has two newspapers, each published weekly, that make things lively in affairs of church and state. Like Springerville, St. Johns is without any communication with the outside world other than the United States mails, which have come regular six times weekly from Navajo on the A. & P. railroad. Probably no less than eight thousand people are living within the sources of supply of route 40,155, perhaps the number will exceed these figures. In a county so wide spread questions of great interest, of no mean importance, not only to Apache county, but to the territory at large are constantly arising that require immediate adjudication. Who can estimate the damage liable at any time to occur by this infrequent mail service. Witnesses from a distance are liable to reach Navajo too late to take advantage of the departure of the courier; papers are delayed from 24 to 48 hours at the post office; courts are annoyed, contestants have entailed upon them unnecessary expense, justice is obstructed, commerce is killed and all the people outraged. If there is a single hundred miles on the postal map of the United States Mail Routes that requires 7 times a week mail, it is No. 40,155. Suppose it don't fully reimburse the government in dollars and cents; that the income is not as great as the expense to maintain a daily service—that is not a question to be considered. Does the public service require a daily mail? The people of Apache county say that it does. Many dollars will be forced from the pockets of the people when this service shall be cut down, where but few would be expended by the government in maintaining it to a full daily. If no service is to be maintained except that which is remunerative, let it be so understood and made general. We hope the department will reconsider their action in this matter and publish the orders at once. The sub-contractor, W. W. Wall, has just refitted his line with new stock, new buckboards and placed it on a footing with the best maintained line in the territory for the service required, and to him especially the order makes great loss.

About fifteen Mormons left by wagon road, a few days ago for Prescott to be present at the District Court.

The luxurious capitalist, Scott Moore, came in town on Wednesday last. Mr. Moore upon being asked to what fortunate circumstance we were indebted for the sight of his beatific countenance, replied, that he left New Mexico to get out of the wet. We were satisfied.

Walter Darling, he that keeps shop along side the deep hole on Commercial street, has been trying to freeze out his cash customers by the application of a superabundance of aqueous crystals to their "eternal and everlasting innards." One more week will determine his success or failure. Both parties are holding out well.

A letter received in this town from George Bagnall, of Show Low, states that his two houses were burned at that place on the night of the fourth of July. Mr. Bagnall was on the way home from St. Johns at the time of the fire, and supposes it was done by incendiaries to cover up the theft of his personal property.

The Territorial Bonds to be issued to the Apache county road board are in the hands of the printer, and will be issued as soon as they are prepared. It is comforting to know that notwithstanding some person or persons in town solely from personal spite, put forth vigorous efforts to make this appropriation of twelve thousand dollars for the improvement of roads and bridges in the county of no avail, but thanks to the good judgment of those in authority the bonds will be issued, and the board will push the improvement with all haste consistent with the work to be done.
